

The Canadian Payroll Association is seeking a Public Representative

The Canadian Payroll Association, a not-for-profit corporation is seeking an independent Public Representative to join its Board of Directors. The board is responsible in providing oversight for the organization.

For over 40 years, the Canadian Payroll Association has helped payroll professionals to enjoy long and rewarding careers, provided essential expertise to help businesses reduce risk and increase productivity, and worked alongside governments to shape legislation.

As a result, the Association has realized significant growth with regards to both membership and influence. Today, over 40,000 payroll professionals have access to our myriad of benefits of membership — including career development, top-tier education offerings, networking events, forward-looking research, and access to critical compliance information.

At the heart of this success has been leadership and innovation. With the introduction of Canada's only payroll designations, the Canadian Payroll Association set the standard for excellence and knowledge. By introducing Payroll Infoline – a hotline staffed by payroll compliance experts – the Association made it easier than ever for businesses to meet their payroll obligations and navigate over 200 legislative requirements. By proactively working with to federal and provincial governments, payroll professionals have benefited from legislative changes that have made payroll more streamlined and efficient. By creating National Payroll Week, we laid the framework for a vibrant community of professionals. And our ground-breaking research has lit the way forward for professionals and policymakers alike.

All of this, and the best is yet to come. With a future-forward focus, the Canadian Payroll Association continues to invest in new products, services, research and advocacy initiatives. Not only to support Canada's 1.5 million employers and the entire payroll profession. But because payroll is essential to the long-term health of every business, the financial wellness of workers and the strength of our economy — all of whom rely on our members to ensure the timely and accurate annual payment of $1.02 trillion in wages and taxable benefits, and $345 billion in statutory remittances.

About the Opportunity:

Position: Public Representative

Reports to: Chair of the Board

Term: Two-year volunteer position, appointed by the Board of Directors. Term would commence at the Association's Annual General Meeting in June 2022.
